FSH and LH secretion was measured in six women by the cross-correlation radioimmunoassay method. Luteinizing hormone secretion was stimulated by synthetic LH-releasing factor, thyrotropin (thyroid-stimulating hormone, TSH) and prolactin (PRL). These stimulatory effects were blocked by an anti-LH-releasing factor antibody. No significant effect was observed with norepinephrine, ACTH or CRF. The results support the idea of a role for sex steroid feedback in the regulation of LH secretion by a releasing factor, present 4bc0debe42
